Opposites attract

Ruching along the left side of Blake Lively's hot Diane von Furstenberg pick balances out the cascading-ruffle shoulder detail, creating a draped style. Gold python pumps offer a fresh finish and add a vintage vibe to Blake's look.

Age-appropriate

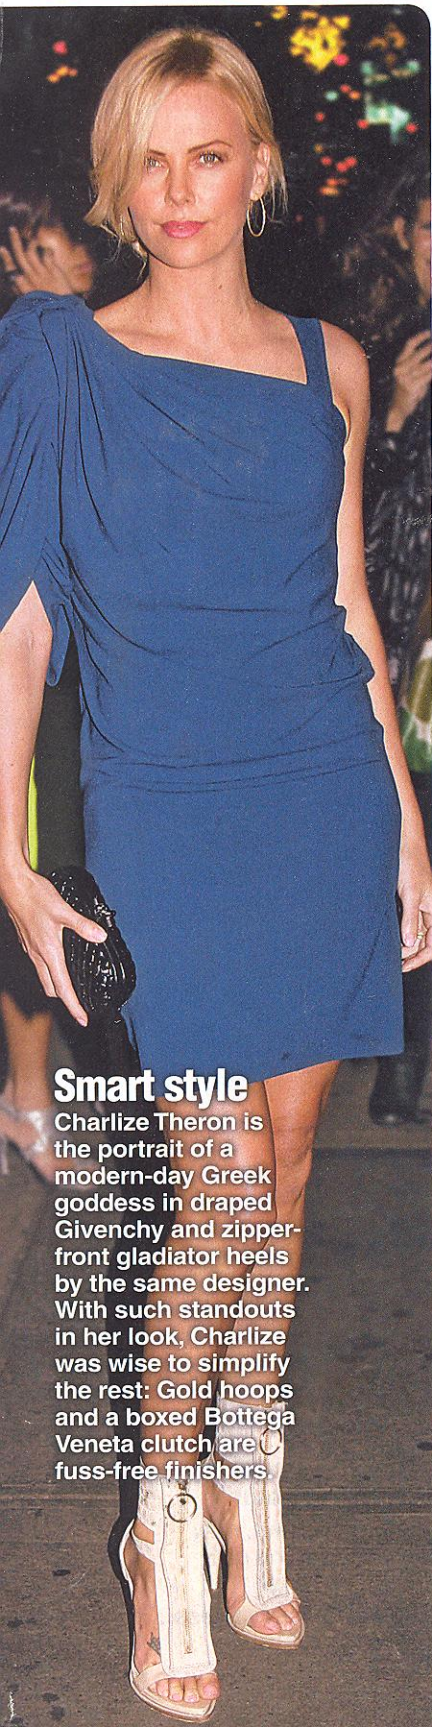

Demi Moore reinvents the toga in a perfectly constructed RM by Roland Mouret, which she pairs with teetering Bally platform peep-toes. At 46, Demi proves anyone can pull off trendy styles — as long as you give the look a sophisticated spin.

Figure-flattering

Smart style

Charlize Theron is the portrait of a modern-day Greek goddess in draped Givenchy and zipper-front gladiator heels by the same designer. With such standouts in her look, Charlize was wise to simplify the rest: Gold hoops and a boxed Bottega Veneta clutch are fuss-free finishers.

Curves ahead

Showstopping in Emanuel Ungaro, Kim Kardashian tells In Touch her secret to glowing skin is CellCeuticals skin-care products. How does she keep in such great shape? Reebok EasyTone sneakers! "I wear them all the time," reveals Kim, adding, "and they really enhance a workout."

Getting the LOOK FOR LESS

One-shoulder styles have a flirty peekaboo effect (sexy, but still covered up) and offer the most flattering cut by highlighting the slimmest part of the body — toned shoulders. For a trendier take, opt for a full-sleeved version and always leave the neckline bare.
